The purpose of this letter is to give credit to those trained in Narrative analysis via computer assisted software, invented and implemented by one of the original co-inventors of "Voice stress Analysis" namely Colonel Charles McQuiston in 1968.

Colonel McQuiston formed the company now known as Truth & Deception Technologies in the mid 1970's and computerized his invention in the early 80's and began practicing narrative analysis.

Due to his efforts and personalized training, the only two Narrative Analysts in existence in the USA are the current owners of Truth & Deception Technologies.

Many changes have been made to the original software. Deceptech software has stayed abreast with the advancements to the growth of Microsoft operating systems. The integrity of the Deceptech software and its value in Narrative analysis will never be affected by these advancements.

Now let me introduce you to Mr. Jacobus Swart, who received his training from TDTVSA in 2007 and the only Narrative Analyst on the continent of Africa. Jakobus was the best student during his training class in 2007 and has kept up VSA studies and further training over the years and is one of only three existing Narrative Analyst's, the other two reside in the United States and are the co-owners of Truth and Deception Technologies who have successfully analyzed hundreds of Narrative analysis cases over the years for police agencies, news organizations & insurance company's worldwide.
